User Agreement:

By registering for a course, you are agreeing to the following—

Minimum internet and technology requirements. A computer system that has capabilities for live streaming/zoom, downloads of musescore.com, and a functioning webcam/audio system. Ability to access Power Point presentations, or PDF files.
Students should not register unless able to run the following programs: Power Point, Muse Score. Com, Word, Zoom, PDF reader

Refunds: Refunds will not be issued for technology or illness arising in a students' instance. If a student is unable to attend a session, they will not be issued a refund.
Refunds will be issued if instructor has unforeseeable disruption or inability to complete class or course. Every effort will be made to engage a qualified replacement in the unlikely event that your instructor is unable to attend class.

Technological difficulties on behalf of the student do not constitute a refund.

Privacy policy: Music Theory Aspire will not share your information with a third party. Students should know and acknowledge privacy policies of required software for this course and the privacy policies which accompany those programs. Music Theory Inspire is not responsible for security concerns regarding third party required software agreements.

Class information/protocol: All students are expected to attend zoom meetings with appropriate attire and attitude. Offensive language, intolerance for classmates based on any reason, and negative attitudes will not be tolerated. Such students will be removed from the course after one warning.
Music Theory Aspire is an equal opportunity 'all are welcome' course. Please leave any of your biases at the door.

In the unlikely event of a zoom-bombing, Music Theory Aspire is not held responsible. It is the expectation that all participants will not share log-in or password information for courses.
